The 1st International Conference on Social and Political Development took place in Medan, Indonesia on November 21 - 22, 2016 with the conference theme of "Government Ethics."

Ethical governance nowadays is an interesting topic to discuss. The tendency or symptom arising today is that many government officials, in doing their duties, often violate the rules that have been established mainly about the principles of ethical governance. Ethics in governance is closely related to morality and mentality of the bureaucrats in accomplishing the tasks of the governance itself that are reflected through the basic functions of government, namely the service function, the function of setting or regulation and the function of community empowerment.

abstract: The ICWRMIP is an ADB funded project carried out by the Government of Indonesia represented by Ministry of Health. The project includes support for Community and NGO-Driven Initiatives for Improved Water Supply and Sanitation which requires the implementation of voluntary land donation (VLD) referring to a process of giving up individual or community rights on land for public usage voluntarily. This study deals with the extent to which procedures and principles of VLD are implemented at community level and the extent to which the land utilization for community infrastructures could sustained beyond project closure. Quantitative approach is used as a basic design in conducting community profiling. However, qualitative approach is used to finalize post-project evaluation. Thirty-two (32) from fifty-four (54) initiated projects were selected as sample using two-stage random sampling. Field survey, documentary study, depth interview and observation on physical project were combined to data collection techniques. The study concludes that the procedures and principles of VLD

Proceedings of the 1st International Conference on Social and Political Development (ICOSOP 2016)

PREFACE

2016 ICOSOP International Seminar is an academic event held by the Faculty of Social and Political Sciences, University of Sumatera, Utara. With the theme : Government Ethics, the Seminar divided into eight (8) sub-themes. They are :

1. Government, Business & Civil Society
2. Local Wisdom, Culture & Law
3. Islamic Ethics Perspective
4. Public Policy & Administration
5. Character Building & Education
6. Gender & Women Movements
7. Global Competition & Ethics
8. Ethics and Law In Social Media

The International Seminar was held over two days, November 21st and 22nd 2016, at the Grand Aston Hotel, Medan. The academics and practitioners in Public Policy, Government, Law, Politics, Society, etc. from universities and government all over Indonesia were invited to join in the seminar.

There were 122 articles received by the 2016 ICOSOP seminar. All articles received by the committee were reviewed. Each article was reviewed by two-high quality reviewers who are qualified in each field. All writers were given two chances to revise their articles after having been reviewed by the reviewers. Next, after the review was done, the committee conducted the editing process for the layout and the article structure. From the 122 articles reviewed, there are 76 articles accepted to be published. All articles have already been reviewed and edited by the committee.

Thanks to all participants for their part in this successful Seminar.
